New Band To Burn One To-Whoarfrost

The "New Band To Burn One To" today is Whoarfrost.

Bio:

Rock band for the ages.
 Power trio for the people.
 Hyperactive storm from the heavens.
 Grunge dressing free jazzers.

Jon Lipsomb - guitar, Tim Shaw - bass, Ethan Snyder - drums

Formed in Boston, MA in 2006 at Berklee factory of music and cut our teeth playing for complacent, drunk, and narrow minded college kids. Lived in Amherst, MA in 2008-2009 and enjoyed the noise in the valley with Fat Worm of Error, Thurston Moore, Bill Nace, Feeding Tube Records and Jack Callahan.

Now living in bountiful Baltimore, MD where the people appreciate a good freak out.

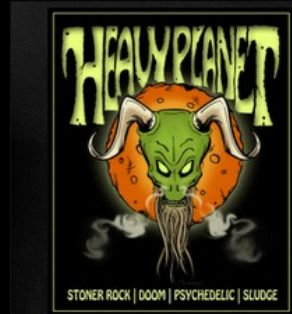

New record out nation wide on the Engine label based in Brooklyn, NYC. Available on Amazon: Whoarfrost.

Toured the country last fall and enjoyed playing angry music as Congress turned red. We continue to hit up the east coast. We love our music and like to play for anyone with ears.

Controlled chaos. Those are the two words I use to describe Baltimore, MD's Whoarfrost. Free form noisy guitar freakouts amidst spirited chaotic jazz passages make way for a very accomplished debut. The band is surprisingly tight for it's abundance of non-sensible grunge-worthy sloppiness and trippy jam sessions. Open your mind and give these guys a listen.
